

Bill Luck – a tribute

Bill joined the Club with his wife Christine in 1989. During his membership he served on the Committee for nearly two decades. He was Librarian from 1996 – 2004 and whilst holding this position he instigated and carried out our closer ties with other local clubs by arranging the sending and receiving of newsletters. He also started our subscription to the Down to Earth Magazine and ordered and distributed it for many years. He promoted our Club in Crawley, where he lived, putting posters and newsletters in the Museum and Library there right up until his health started to fail. He and Chris attended many field trips and events until recently. His large collection of Jurassic ammonites, brachiopods and bivalves kept the lucky dip barrel going at the events in Horsham Park for many years. He must have wrapped and labelled hundreds.

He was the sort of member a club needs and values. A 'doer'. Much missed.
